Going Deep: Building Workplace Relationships on a Solid Foundation

The workplace can be an extremely complex human environment where conflicts arise several times a day. It can be very difficult to determine where and why these conflicts arise, until now. On this day, we will learn the levels of decision-making and how each of those levels can put you in conflict with co-workers, customers, and even yourself! Next, we'll look at finding deep-seated commonality on values that will help you be patient and go the "extra mile" with everyone you come in contact during the day. Engaging, interactive, and just downright fun, these tools will help you in almost every relationship.
